

I think doing testing with in vitro methods is a great idea. The use of animals in these tests is not only inhumanely cruel but also expensive and wasteful. The in vitro methods do not require animals (or a drastically reduced number) and can still give the results needed for the tests.

Thank You,
Mark Laity-Snyder